

To Whom It May Concern:

I am concerned about the action being considered by the FCC (proceeding 04-233) that would potentially displace KLOVE radio transmissions over FM translators.

KLOVE is an important part of my daily life and is a key part of my spiritual health maintenance. In the same way I take the stairs instead of the elevator to help maintain my physical health, I choose to listen to KLOVE's positive and encouraging programming rather than the negative and stressful programming found on most commercial radio stations.

KLOVE provides an important service to our community by communicating the message of hope and love that comes from knowing Jesus Christ. In our society today, there are many lost and lonely people. Those people can be a burden and even a detriment to society. The saving grace of Jesus brings people out of this unproductive state and moves them to being productive members of society. KLOVE contributes to this by bringing the gospel to the community commercial free.

Should KLOVE go off the air in our community, we will lose an important alternative to mainstream commercial broadcasting. The commercial-free aspect of KLOVE programming significantly helps to reinforce the message of selfless love that is foundational to the Gospel. While other radio stations may have Christian music and information, the commercial ads often detract from the primary message and in some cases even contradict it.

Please consider keeping the rules for FM translator usage as they are so KLOVE can continue to serve our community.
